Just What Is Klezmer, Anyway?

These have been years of recall, of looking for roots, of burrowing about in one's ancestral attic and trying to learn what it was that went into the making of us and our ways. Musical roots are constantly being unearthed and pressed into concerts of old American, old Irish, old Caribbean, old African, and old Asian song. In all of this, klezmer has caught on, too, with young musicians addressing themselves joyously to this bountiful expression of the Jews of Eastern Europe, a music that, like the people who played and danced to it, has been uprooted and was, until this revival, headed for extinction.

Klezmer music is heard in such shirtsleeve precincts as Folk City and Eagle Tavern and in such jacket-and-tie premises as Carnegie Hall. Its revival is nationwide, and it travels the college circuit. Klezmer has also made its appearance on the shelves of many record stores where it finds a ready take-out audience. It is the sort of revival that, ten years ago, few would have dreamed possible for a sort of music that perhaps even fewer had heard of, except from grandparents or in translations of Yiddish folk tales.

Klezmer is one of those institutions that seem simple enough, yet raise a multitude of questions. What is Jewish music? What is klezmer? Who made the definitions, anyway? Good questions and more suitable to an eager young student's doctoral thesis. You can read it, if you want, while you are in your stereo room tapping your foot to the latest klezmer record.

Klezmer, let's say, is music made by klezmerim, Jewish musicians who traveled around Eastern Europe playing at weddings, bar mitzvahs and other simchas that struck a happy note. The word klezmer derives from Hebrew and means musician. The music of the klezmerim reflected the various places they had been to and where Jews lived. The klezmer tradition came to America with the large Jewish immigration early in this century, and its establishment here has led to various interpretations of its relationship to American pop. Some klezmer musicians restrict their revival to Old Country music, while others profess to hear klezmer influences in the New World's own music, including jazz, which, in any case, was well established long before klezmer came off the boat.

Klezmer music can be slow or fast. It is abundantly joyous or mournfully elegiac. It is folk music, and it is music composed by Yiddish theatericians. It is played by musicians who are Jewish and others who are not Jewish, and listened to by audiences that are Jewish and are not Jewish. What is particularly interesting is that its resuscitation has taken place at the hands of mostly young aficionados. It usually rallies around a clarinet in the hands of a virtuoso who can make it laugh or cry or soar to peaks of glorious sound, and it is abetted by piccolos, violins, guitars, accordions; well, I should guess, almost anything that can be played.

And what is Jewish about it, in a world where Jews come from India, Turkey, Ethiopia, and Kurdistan as well as from Minsk, Pinsk, and Dvinsk? This is a special Jewish music, with Jewish being a translation from the word "Yiddish." Every demurrer that you make may have absolute validity and yet, it is undeniably eligible to be called "Jewish music." Actually, you can learn more quickly what klezmer is all about by listening to some records that have come on the market. Two, by the Klezmer Conservatory Band, are on Vanguard: "Klez!" and "Yiddishe Renaissance" — the repertory of these klezmers almost an historical portfolio of the many moods of the genre. This band ranges far and wide, drawing from Yiddish theater scores and also from arrangements that blend American-style jazz and pop with Yiddish themes. Its secret weapon is Judy Bressler, whose vocals are done in a fine, liquid Yiddish in which every word rings clearly and melodiously.

Even in its most reflective moments, Klezmer Conservatory is an upbeat and exultant ensemble, reflecting a warmth and reverence for its music. But it is not the last word on klezmer, nor does it pretend to be, in this indefinable and therefore limitless field.

— Richard F. Shepard, The New York Times

The Klezmer Conservatory Band

From the shtetls of Eastern Europe, through the emigration to America, from the jazz clubs of cities and the stages of Yiddish theatre comes the music of the Klezmer Conservatory Band.

Klezmer music began in medieval Europe, where bands of itinerant Jewish musicians went from town to town playing for Jewish festivals and special events. By the nineteenth century, klezmer music had become a well-developed musical style, taking its inspiration not only from the synagogue, but from the non-Jewish culture that surrounded it. In America, immigrant Jewish musicians adapted this music to the new rhythms and instruments they found, creating new klezmer forms. Until the 1940s, klezmer orchestras flourished, but with new styles of music and the immigrant Jews' desire to appear "American," the klezmer tradition faded.

Today, however, a klezmer revival is in full swing, with the twelve-piece Klezmer Conservatory Band playing a prominent role. Fueled by a desire to return to his roots, Hankus Netsky, the band's founder, discovered that both a grandfather and an uncle were in Philadelphia klezmer orchestras in the 1920s. This, combined with the inherent appeal of the music, inspired Netsky to form his own ensemble in 1980, while he was an instructor at the New England Conservatory of Music.

The Klezmer Conservatory Band has taken its eclectic brand of Yiddish music from Minneapolis to Miami Beach and from Boston to Sacramento. It has released five albums: "Yiddishe Renaissance," "KLEZ," and "A Touch of Klez" on the Vanguard label, and "Oy Chanukah" and "A Jumpin' Night in the Garden of Eden" on the Rounder label. In addition, the Band is featured on "Tourists," a live album released by the popular radio program "Prairie Home Companion," on which the group made frequent appearances. In 1988, the documentary film "A Jumpin' Night in the Garden of Eden," about klezmer music and the Klezmer Conservatory Band, played in cities throughout the country. The film received an Ann Arbor showing on September 27 in a Pre-concert Presentation, underwritten by a grant from Philips Display Components.

By popular demand, the Klezmer Conservatory Band now returns after its Ann Arbor debut in January 1989.

The Chilingirian String Quartet

Coming Tuesday, October 16, Rackham Auditorium, 8:00 p.m.

Program: Sergey Aslamazian's folk-based "Armenian" Suite, Bartók's Quartet No. 4 and Schubert's Quartet No. 15, D. 887.

Philips Pre-concert Presentation: 7:00 p.m., October 16, Rackham Building (free admission). "Desert Island Discs"

Co-produced by the University Musical Society and Michigan Radio, "Desert Island Discs" is now in its second season of Saturday morning broadcasts, from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. Each program features a distinguished local "castaway" guest who is asked, "If you were stranded on a desert island, which five recordings would you like to have with you and (most revealingly) why?" Interviewers are Joel Seguire, WUOM station manager and Ken Fischer, UMS executive director.

Tune in WUOM-FM, 91.7, Ann Arbor; WVGR-FM, 104.1, Grand Rapids; or WFUM-FM, 91.1, Flint.
